Are we, as the man spoken of in former times, willing to sell all that we have in order that we may buy this field which will bring us everlasting joy and exaltation as sons and daughters of God?

Chapter 36

SYMBOLISM IN THE TEMPLES

By ELDER JOHN A. WIDTSOR²

There is at present an unusual increased interest in temple activity. Our temples are crowded. The number of temples is also increasing. There is a renewed spirit in behalf of temple work, not because people are wealthier than they were before, nor because temples are more accessible, but because the time has come for more temple work to be done. The spirit is abroad among the people, and those who are honest in heart and understand the gospel of Jesus Christ, are willing to give their time and means more liberally in behalf of temple work.

Men grow mighty under the results of temple work. Women grow strong under the opportunity increases in power. The devil has less influence over the mind and heart. The opposition to truth is relatively smaller. Men are engaged actively in the work of the temple.

A temple is a place where the definition of the word "eternity" is given. It is a place where the principles and ordinances of the gospel are taught. It is a place where the people are taught to understand the plan of salvation and the purpose of life.

It is a place where the people are taught to understand the plan of salvation and the purpose of life. It is a place where the people are taught to understand the plan of salvation and the purpose of life. It is a place where the people are taught to understand the plan of salvation and the purpose of life.

² Elder, President of The Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

every hand, and among every people, is because the gospel in its fullness was revealed to Adam, and that all religions and religious practices are therefore derived from the remnants of the truth given to Adam and transmitted by him to the patriarchs. The ordinances of the temple in so far as then necessary, were given, no doubt, in those early days, and, very naturally, corruptions of them have been handed down the ages. Those who understand the eternal nature of the gospel—planned before the foundations of the earth—understand clearly why all history seems to revolve about the building and use of temples.

To understand the meaning of temple worship, it is necessary to understand the plan of salvation. . . . We have won our place upon the earth. We shall pass into another sphere of existence, and shall continue upward and onward forever and ever, if we obey the high laws of eternal existence. The plan of salvation for eternal beings involves the principle that God's work with respect to this earth will not be complete until every soul has been taught the gospel and has been offered the privilege of accepting salvation and the accompanying great blessings which the Lord has in store for his children. Until that is done the work is unfinished.

Those who travel the earth journey are traveling out an eternal problem. An eternal journey is ours; the earth life is a fraction of it; the purpose is unending. In God's kingdom are many blessings which lead to exaltation and eternal life. Those who hunger and thirst for righteousness and labor
